The Bay Area Health Officers are using the following indicators to measure progress against COVID-19:

1. Whether the total number of cases and hospitalizations is flat or decreasing;
2. Whether we have sufficient hospital bed and surge capacity;
3. Whether there is an adequate supply of personal protective equipment for all health care workers;
4. Whether we are meeting the need for testing, especially for vulnerable populations or those in high-risk settings or occupations; and
5. Whether we have sufficient capacity to investigate all COVID-19 cases and trace all of their contacts, and support isolation and quarantine.
